

The European War Day by Day.

Russians Report Naval Victory.

Petrograd, July 3.—According to an official statement issued to-day by the admiralty, "on the morning of July 2, along the parallel of the Oestegarn lighthouse, on the east coast of the island of Gothland, cruisers encountered in a fog two enemy's light cruisers and some torpedo boats and engaged them in battle.

"At 9 o'clock in the morning a German cruiser, badly damaged lowered her flag and ran ashore. The other cruiser and the torpedo boats fled.

"At 10 o'clock our squadron encountered the armored cruiser Roon, one light cruiser and one torpedo boat and renewed the battle.

"At 10.30 o'clock the enemy began to retire toward the south. During the retreat the enemy was joined by another light cruiser. This vessel was attacked by our cruisers and fled. At 11.39 o'clock the pursuit ceased.

"After the battle our squadron was unsuccessfully attacked by submarines.

"The damage to our cruisers was quite insignificant."

Berlin Account Differs.

Berlin, July 4.—The plucky fight of the German mine layer Albatross against four Russian cruisers of the armored class, and what is charged by German naval officers as a Russian violation of Swedish neutrality, claimed public attention in Berlin to-day.

According to Swedish and Danish reports, the Albatross, in a dense fog, lost sight of accompanying small cruisers and suddenly was attacked by four big ships. The mine layer fought desperately for several hours, but was driven toward the Swedish waters. The captain ran the ship aground near Henviker.

The Russians, it is said, continued firing long after the Albatross entered Swedish territory. The Oestegarn lighthouse was hit and the keeper was compelled to flee.

The Albatross was hit about 30 times. Lieut. Loewenberg and 27 men were killed and many others were wounded. One shell entered the ship hospital, killing ten wounded men and fatally wounding a doctor.

The Swedish government, these advisers say, immediately ordered the Swedish minister at Petrograd to protest vigorously against the violation of Sweden's neutrality.

The Russian cruisers, after the action, with the Albatross, were engaged by one large warship and several small German cruisers off the coast and disappeared, hotly pursued by the Germans.

Also Active in the Black.

Petrograd, July 3.—The Russian admiralty to-day makes public the following statement:

"A Russian submarine in the Black Sea to-day torpedoed and sank a steamer of 2,600 tons. It then set fire to and sank a sailing ship of 1,500 tons. Subsequently a small steamer was sent to the bottom. The three vessels were in the neighborhood of Kesken, and were laden with coal and provisions.

The submarine also shelled another steamer anchored in the river, and several coal laden barges and a tug were driven ashore.

"Near the mouth of the Bosphorus the submarine came into action with an armored schooner. After an exchange of shots this vessel, with two others of a similar type, were run ashore."

Germans Active, Both Fronts.

Berlin, July 4.—Gen. von Linsingen's army is in full pursuit of the Russian forces who are retreating toward the Zlota Lipa river in Galicia and has forced them to evacuate their positions in the regions of Misto and Krylow, says the German official statement issued to-day.

In the West the Germans, continuing their offensive in the Argonne, captured 2,556 officers and men and took 25 machine guns and 72 mine throwers. They also claim to have captured a part of the forest north of Fey-en-Haye.

Attacks Repulsed, Says Paris.

Paris, July 4.—German troops in close formation last night attacked the French forces defending the Angres-Abtain road, to the north of Arras, but were dispersed after suffering heavy losses, according to the French official statement issued this afternoon.

A German battalion, the statement adds, attempted to storm the village of Fey, five miles west of Pont-a-Mousson and the Moselle river, but was forced to retire after reaching the French wire entanglements.

Submarines Sink Many.

London, July 2.—The British admiralty announced last night that the torpedo boat destroyer Lightning had been lost and that 14 members of her crew are missing. Although no mention is made of the manner in which the Lightning was sunk, it is presumed that she struck a mine or was torpedoed.

sumed that she struck a mine or was torpedoed.

London, July 2.—Three British steamers, the Inglemoor, Caucasian and the Welbury, were torpedoed and sunk to-day by a German submarine. The crews of the Inglemoor and Caucasian were landed at Falmouth. The Welbury's crew is safe.

(The Caucasian was a tank steamer of 4,656 tons gross. She was 385 feet long. The Inglemoor was of 4,331 gross tons, 363 feet long. The Welbury left Kingston, Jamaica, May 22, by way of Mantanzas, Cuba, June 8, for a port in the United Kingdom. She was of 3,591 tons gross and 340 feet long. After the ship left Cuba it was discovered that some one had painted inside the vessel's forehold the words: "You have a cargo of sugar for England, but you will never get there.")

London, July 2.—The British schooner L. C. Tower, which left Parrsboro, N. S., June 1 for Newport, England, was sunk off Fastnet to-day by a German submarine. The undersea boat then sank a bark six miles away. The crew of nine of the schooner was landed at Queenstown.

London, July 3.—The Belgian steamship Boduognat, 1,444 tons gross, 250 feet long, was torpedoed and sunk to-day by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Falmouth.

Paris, July 5.—It was officially announced to-day by the French ministry of marine that the French steamer Carthage, of 5,275 tons gross, was torpedoed by a German submarine yesterday and sunk.

London, July 5.—The Norwegian bark Firey Cross has been sunk by a German submarine 70 miles southwest of the Scilly Islands. Her crew of 18, after spending 20 hours in open boats, landed at Swansea. Among the crew are six Americans.

Paullac, France, July 5.—The Spanish steamer Juan arrived here to-day with the captain and seven men of the French schooner Hiron-delle. The schooner was sunk July 2 by a German submarine near Ouesant, the westernmost of the islands off the coast of Brittany.

One Escapes Heavy Fire.

Queenstown, July 5.—With nine dead sailors stretched on her deck, eight men lying wounded below, and her sides riddled with shot and shell, the British steamship Anglo-Californian steamed into Queenstown harbor this morning after having withstood the attack of a German submarine for four hours. The ship's escape from destruction was accomplished with no other means of defense than the indomitable spirit of her captain and crew, combined with masterly seamanship, which enabled her to frustrate the efforts of her assailant to torpedo her.

The story of how Capt. Parslow stood on the bridge of the ship amid a rain of shot and calmly directed the movements of his ship until he was killed by a shell, and of how his place was taken by his son until British destroyers appeared and the submarine was compelled to flee, was told by the survivors.

"The submarine, on the surface, proved to be a far speedier craft than the steamer and rapidly overhauled her, meanwhile deluging her with shell. One shot put the wireless apparatus on the Anglo-Californian out of action. Finding he could not escape by running for it, Capt. Parslow devoted all his attention to maneuvering his ship so as to prevent the submarine from using torpedoes effectively.

"He kept at his post on the bridge, coolly giving orders as the submarine circled around us, vainly seeking to get a position from which it could give us a death blow with torpedoes. All the while the under-water boat continued to rain shot and shell upon us, and at times was so close that she was able to employ rifle fire effectively. At last one shell blew the captain off the bridge, killing him outright and terribly mutilating him. Just before that he had given orders to launch the boats, but this was very difficult under the shell fire. Several men were struck down while working at the davits. Ultimately four boats were got overboard and were rowed away until picked up."

The son of Capt. Parslow, serving as second mate, was standing by his father's side when the latter was killed. The son was knocked down by the violence of the explosion, springing to his feet he assumed command of the vessel. Destroyers soon arrived and the attacking submarine was forced to abandon her efforts.

Germans Storm French Position.

Berlin, July 5.—To-day's German official statement follows:

"Western theater—A British attack north of Ypres and a French attack against Souchez were repulsed. "On the western end of the forest of Pe Petre the Germans stormed 1,500 yards of the enemy's position and advanced for a distance of 400 yards. We captured about 100 unwounded Frenchmen, among whom were the staff officers of one battalion, and took two field guns, four machine guns and three light and four heavy mine throwers.

"Eastern theater—Teutonic allied troops under Gen. von Linsingen have reached the whole front of the Zlota Lipa, and have cleaned the west bank of Russians. In almost a fortnight of fighting against strong enemy position we have forced a passage across the Dneister, and have driven the enemy from position to position."

The French Report.

Paris, July 5.—The following official communication was issued by the French war office this afternoon: "North of Arras two attempted enemy attacks, each preceded by a violent bombardment, were checked by us last night. One was directed particularly against our positions in front of Souchez. The Germans came out several times from their trenches, armed with grenades and bombs, but we compelled them to withdraw, leaving many dead. The other took place at 'the Labyrinth,' but it was stopped at once.

"Yesterday afternoon and evening the Germans assumed the offensive along a front of about three miles, stretching from Fey-en-Haye to the Moselle. East of Fey-en-Haye, as well as in the western section of the forest of Le Petre, along a front of two-thirds of a mile, they were successful, after a very violent bombardment, in again gaining a footing in their old lines, recently taken by us. In spite of the vigor of their action, however, they found it impossible to move beyond those lines.

"Further east, on a line running from La-Croix-Des-Carmes to the village of Riept, on the Moselle, a German attack resulted in complete failure and the enemy suffered very heavy losses."

Italians Still Successful.

Rome, July 5.—The following official statement was issued at the headquarters of the Italian general staff:

"In the region of the Tyrol, Trentino and Carnia there has been a continuance of artillery actions, supported by small Italian detachments pushing toward the front. The Hensel fort was reached a number of times yesterday.

"Supported by continuous artillery fire the enemy attempted to retake last night trenches on the northern slope of Val Granie, occupied by our Alpine troops on July 2. This attack, like those preceding it, was repulsed.

"Our adversary renewed yesterday, with particular violence, counter attacks against several lines of positions conquered by us on the Careo plateau. In spite of the fire of machine guns and artillery these counter attacks were repulsed with heavy losses. We captured 300 prisoners, two field cannon, guns and munitions. According to prisoners the Austrian losses, especially from our artillery fire, have been serious in the last few days."

Dispatches this Morning.

Indicate that the Russians are preparing for another stand in their retreat before the Austro-German forces in the drive for Warsaw. A serious break in the Russian center is reported, but elsewhere the advance has been checked.

For the first time in weeks activity by the British forces in the West is reported, they having gained some 400 yards of German trenches. Considerable success is reported for the allies in Turkey.

The French report German attacks repulsed, some slight captures, with general situation remaining unchanged.

I am pained to note the passing of the chrysanthemum, the erstwhile "autumn queen," though for years I have thought that their culture meant "too much sugar for a dine." Dahlias seem to have replaced this former most popular flower, and now replaces it as an industry by some of our women.

R. K. Nimmons is at the exposition. John Edwards joined a party early this week for the exposition.

I am gratified that the suggestion last week to make next week—the week before chautauqua—clean-up week, is taking with our housekeepers. Let everybody get busy and make our town, always beautiful, "blossom like the rose." The advertising committee is doing some fine work, and Seneca is going to do herself proud in entertaining and caring for the visitors. Remember: "We're lookin' for you."

Lockjaw Caused Negro's Death.

(Anderson Mail, July 2d.) Will Allen, the negro who had his hand mashed while working for the city council on Calhoun street on Tuesday a week ago, died in the county hospital Thursday afternoon at 7 o'clock. Lockjaw was the cause of death. Allen was employed with the force of hands engaged in removing the old concrete drain. He had hold of one end of the piece of drain when the other end was raised, causing him in some way to get his hand mashed.

Mississippi Lynching Discovered.

DeKalb, Miss., July 4.—An unidentified negro was lynched 12 miles from here on June 22, according to an announcement to-day by Kemper county authorities, who for ten days have been investigating vague rumors that a mob near Preston had taken the life of a negro farm hand.

The negro was alleged to have stolen cotton seed from several farmers, and when the owners instituted an investigation he is said to have written several letters asking if they valued their cotton seed more than they did their lives.

The lynching, it was said, took place after the identity of the writer had been established.
